

Breguet Chain & Fusee:
It's considered the coup de grace of Breguet's offerings last year

Breguet Messidor:
The most alluring and dramatic element of the watch is the tourbillon cage

WELCOME TO HARRY'S BAR!

By LARRY WEE

REGULAR readers of BT's annual watch supplement have been thrilled by Harry Tan's incredibly detailed watch close-ups before, and there is no doubt he has outdone himself this year.

Harry, an academic whose full-time job is to inspire young minds, also never fails to impress on these pages one year after another. Besides generously agreeing to help us photograph our mystery collector's pieces (again) elsewhere in this supplement, he has kindly contributed this photo-essay of some of his favourite new watches of the past one year.

This is compelling – nay, stunning evidence that a picture is worth a thousand words! On behalf of BT's watch-loving readers, thanks very much Harry!

Daniel Roth Lumiere Tourbillon:
Another skeleton tourbillon like the Breguet Messidor, but with a different design philosophy

McGonigle Tourbillon: On closer inspection, the tourbillon case shows that it has surpassed many other brands in terms of quality of finish

Roger Smith Series 2:
The design on the dial on this watch is painstakingly hand-made, as is the rest of the watch

Glashütte Original Senator Rattrapante:
The blue screws and the contrast of gold and steel parts all bring together a movement image that chronograph collectors will love

Langematik Perpetual Sincere Limited Edition:
The blue disc for the moonphase will be mesmerising to those who find such complications attractive
